

GOSSIPS SAY EX-KAISER'S SECOND MARRIAGE TODAY WILL BE HAPPIER

FIRST WIFE HAD NO FEELING FOR POMP AND SHOW

Bride Described as Tall With Blond Hair and Rather Beautiful.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 4.—Gossip in Germany has it that the marriage tomorrow of former Emperor William of Germany and Princess Hermine of Reuss augurs a far more wise and workable union than that between William and his first wife, Princess Augusta Victoria, which took place in February, 1881, and terminated just 40 years and two months later, when she died an exile from her beloved Potsdam.

There are many who are able to see much in common between the ex-emperor and his bride to be, despite the difference in their ages, while back in 1881, when the whole German empire was in festive attire to celebrate the marriage of its heir apparent, even the most optimistic were compelled to admit that the two royal scions could not have been farther apart had they been of different worlds.

LIKED GAUDY UNIFORMS
Princess Augusta was shy, trustful, essentially feminine, a lover of her home, and with no sympathy for pomp and ceremony. For more than 12 years of her married life she was a social invalid.

The bridegroom, on the other hand, was already feverishly active and possessed of insatiable ambition. He loved display, never tired of arraying himself in gaudy uniforms, and was happy only when he could play a leading part before the whole world. These were the differences that the world at large saw. Those who were intimate with either or both of the principals, however, knew that the private order of their lives was even farther from agreement.

In matters pertaining to love and marriage, Prince William had his own ideas, which he held up to with almost morbid scrupulousness. He believed, first and always, that a man, whether he be exalted or not, should choose his wife as she would her gown—for qualities that he would find well. Intellectual strength or brilliant emotional vigor and pronounced character were not among the qualities he looked for in a wife.

CALLS HER A "PEARL"
Fortunately, her married life before Princess Augusta had many important roles to perform, thus she managed to continue with her simple habits without provoking unfriendly comment. She had no experience with court life, and little if anything about cities, therefore, it was years before she mastered the details of her royal social status.

Yet, with all their disparity of temperament, those who had predicted an unhappy union for the crown prince were forced, as the years wore on, to admit that their judgment had played them false. Never were there any well founded reasons of a separation, or even of disagreement. The political wisecracks, who usually are able to assign a reason for all royal utterances or actions, were hopelessly at sea, when one day William issued a statement, in which he called Princess Augusta a "precious pearl," the type of all the virtues of a Germanic princess. To her I owe it that I am able to tackle and perform in a cheerful spirit the difficult duties of my position.

REBUKES KAISER
Docile and uninterested in affairs of state, Empress Augusta nevertheless was supreme within the palace walls. The accounts of the bill of fare, and the management of her seven children were under her immediate supervision. Once the emperor told one of his officers that he wanted the young princess to learn how to handle a cannon. When the officer mentioned this to the empress, she refused to hear of them taking such risks.

"But the kaiser has already given the order," said the officer.
"That may be as you say," she replied, smiling, "he is the kaiser of Germany, but I am the kaiser of the nursery."

Princess Hermine, on the other hand, understood to enjoy and respect all the royal traditions which she hardly knew beyond the German borders, and seldom if ever mentioned the arrangements of Germany, even in her engagement to the ex-emperor was announced, still there are many households in central Europe which profess to have an intimate knowledge of her character. It is these the preponderance of opinion is that she has all the qualities to make her a valuable and sympathetic companion to the imperial exile of Doorn.

BEAUTIFUL BLOND
Princess Hermine is tall and has blond hair and is regarded as beautiful. She is known for her interest in the arts and outdoor pastimes. She lives in Castle Saaborn in German Silesia. The castle is extremely primitive, being without hot and cold water, stationary bathtubs, and modern sanitary arrangements of even the most elementary character.

She is the daughter of Prince Henry XXII of Reuss, an autocratic head of a tiny principality, constantly at loggerheads with the Hohenzollerns and Prince Bismarck. He ruled his small domain with an iron hand, refusing to permit a house to be built or a tree to be cut down without his personal sanction. He even insisted that as "father of his country," he had the sole right personally to administer whippings to the public school children.

The father of Princess Hermine died a year after her mother, whose death has been ascribed to grief over an operation upon her only son, Prince Hermann's brother, which made him blind and an imbecile in addition to being deaf and dumb.

ROYAL (?) FAMILY TIES CREATED

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Princess Hermine of Reuss by her marriage to ex-Kaiser Wilhelm will contract these new family ties:

Cousin of King George V of England.

Aunt of King George of Greece.

Cousin of Queen Maud of Norway.

Second cousin of the Prince of Wales.

Sister-in-law of ex-King Constantine and ex-Queen Sophie of Greece.

And she will also become a relative, variously distant, of the queen of Holland, the crown princess of Sweden, and ex-King Manuel of Portugal; and, if they had lived, she would become a cousin of the czar and tsarina of Russia.

PRINCESS CRIES IN HER DESPAIR

Foul Slander and Intrigue, Hermine Says, Were Used By Enemies.

By S. D. WEYER.
(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

DOORN, Holland, Nov. 4.—Princess Hermine of Reuss, who will be married tomorrow to the former German kaiser, comes to Doorn today, not as a happy bride, but with bitterness in her soul.

The intensity of the princess' bitterness is equalled only by her determination to get even with those who made this day of "joy" one in which she feels that the whole world is against her.

Hermine—to put it succinctly—came to Doorn with the defiant will to win and punish. She had poured out her heart to the correspondent, but begged that her revelations and her declarations to "get even" not be printed until she left Germany and arrived in Holland.

BURSTS INTO TEARS.
Consequently, her interview can be given to the public today.

The correspondent asked the princess: "What about that mysterious trunk which is said to have arrived in Doorn the other day? It was said to contain the crown which the former kaiser is personally to place upon your head."

A bitter, jerky laugh was the first reaction from this question. "For a moment the princess struggled with herself, then she arose and joined her hands high above her head, gazing upward at the ceiling with an air of despair she burst into tears. Then amidst convulsive sobs she exclaimed:

"So that is the latest lie? I suppose they want to make me out a vain, ambitious creature. What is it you call it in the United States? Oh, yes, I am called the 'kaiser's crown.' They have already poisoned my wedding. They have given me a foretaste of hell upon earth."

EXPLAINS ATTACKS.
Asked whom she meant by "they," the princess gradually calmed down and explained:

"I mean those who, for selfish or sickly sentimental reasons are opposed to our marriage. They have tried to prevent it by every conceivable means, but mostly by foul slander and diabolic intrigues."

"Yes, among those who fought and humiliated me are some of the kaiser's own relatives, but they are not the worst. They are fighting and have been doing so more or less in the open."

"The chief opposition has come from schemers who felt that they would be cheated of their spoils, or feared for their jobs."

Princess Hermine's lips tightened, her eyes flashed, while she doubled up her jeweled hands into two small but angry little fists.

"The worst of all—the meanest of all—are the Camarilla," she snapped between clenched teeth. "Listen!" she leaned forward tensely, her eyes hard and penetrating—"The kaiser today is just as much isolated as he was throughout his reign in Germany."

"He is isolated by a cordon of courtiers who fawn upon him and play their own game all the time. They are parasites. They live upon him (the kaiser)."

GUARD ABOUT CASTLE.
Special precautions have been taken by the local commandant of the Dutch gendarmerie for the protection of the

FATHER VAUGHN DEEPLY MISSED

Noted Figure in English Church Famous for His Eloquence, Sharp Utterances and Ready Wit.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The death of Father Bernard Vaughn, brother of the late Cardinal Vaughn, has removed one of the most picturesque figures of the English clergy, Catholic or Protestant.

Father Vaughn was a member of one of the oldest Catholic families in England. Under the influence of his mother, six of her eight sons became priests; they include a cardinal and two bishops. Five daughters became nuns.

For many years, Father Vaughn was a commanding figure in the English Catholic church. His eloquence kept audiences spellbound, while his utterances gave the newspapers unlimited copy. He entered the Jesuit order in 1866, his ability coming under notice of Pope Leo XIII, and he was transferred to London in 1901. He first worked among the lower classes, and soon became known throughout the kingdom as an "aristocratic servant of the poor." Later he assumed charge of a fashionable church in Berkeley-square in 1906, where he delivered his famous sermon on "The Sign of the Cross," which created the widest comment.

These sermons denounced modern dress tendencies. Father Vaughn declaring that "women used to dress for dinner, now they undress." He attacked birth control, asserting: "The nation is traveling toward the cemetery, and there are more pedagogue in London than children, and 'a woman tells me she expects to meet her pet dog in the next world; she didn't say who was to be the dog.'"

Among incidents illustrating his wit, a stunts is one when he was visiting a slums school. The teacher asked a pupil: "What is the difference between ex-kaiser's castle, and all the principals and guests until the wedding celebration is over."

The princess explained the "mysterious trunk" by saying: "It contained nothing but some of my books."

Ford Runs 57 Miles on Gallon of Gasoline

A new automatic Vaporizer and Decarbonizer, which in actual test has increased the power and mileage of Fords from 25 to 50 per cent and at the same time removed every particle of carbon from the cylinders is the proud achievement of John A. Stranisky, 2025 South Main street, Elkhart, South Dakota. A remarkable feature of this simple and inexpensive device is that its action is governed entirely by the motor. It is slipped between the carburetor and intake manifold and can be installed by anyone in five minutes without drilling or tapping. With it attached, Ford cars have made from 40 to 57 miles on one gallon of gasoline. Mr. Stranisky wants to place a few of these devices on cars in this territory and has a very liberal offer to make to anyone who is able to handle the business, which is sure to be created wherever this marvelous little device is demonstrated. If you want to try one entirely at his risk send him your name and address today.—Advertisement.

FRENCH INDUSTRIAL LEADER LIKES U. S.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Marquis Guy de Lubersac, who has attained great prominence recently through the negotiation of the famous Stines-Lubersac agreement for the rehabilitation of the devastated war areas, has an intimate knowledge of the United States. He is a brother-in-law of the Countess Odon de Lubersac, who was Miss Constance Livermore, daughter of a New York banker.

Marquis de Lubersac has visited America twice, the last time during the 1912 election, when he attended many political meetings. He knows many prominent New Yorkers and entertains them when they come to Paris. He is unusually well informed on American affairs, follows developments in the United States closely and shows a strong liking for Americans.

The marquis is a member of the French senate, for the department of the Alps. He is a member of one of the oldest titled families in France and one of the youngest of the group of new leaders in this country. He is 44 years of age.

Lubersac speaks English with but a slight accent. He is wealthy and through his brother-in-law, Eugene Schneider, the French steel manufacturer, he is interested in many French industries.

He too, held that Salt Lake and Ogden would be the direct beneficiaries of the solution of the smaller cities, towns and agricultural and livestock growing sections. He pledged the efforts and entire support of the Ogden chamber of commerce to the league.

LEAGUE WORK NEEDED.
Mr. Hampton was emphatic in his declaration that the league must do something in a practical way to benefit the intermountain country and its people. He said it must lend a material helping hand by helping to form organizations that would lend financial assistance to the agricultural and livestock growers. He told of a survey being conducted by the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce to aid the canning industry and interest capital in forming more canning industries in the valley.

Mr. McGowan suggested co-ordination by the development league with the newly organized southern Idaho and northern Utah chamber of commerce to take up the solution of the bigger problems confronting these sections. Mr. McMathews told of the difficulties experienced by farmers of the Snake River valley in securing funds to tide them over periods of financial stress, and emphasized the need of lower freight rates for southern Idaho. Mr. Bowen said that the league and everyone in the intermountain country should assist in helping to build up the California markets as the logical market for intermountain products. He pointed with pride to the dairy industry of the Cache valley, and told of the good work being done by Ogden millers in helping to help the valley farmers in grain-raising and marketing.

At the afternoon session of the league delegates' questions pertaining to maintenance of the Price-Duchess highway over Indian pass during the winter months was discussed and

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS
Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble

Too much meat may form uric acid, which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Big meat eaters can flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like they relieve the bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else they may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach aches, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad they have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for generations to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.—Advertisement.

ENTIRE WEST IN THROES OF HOT CAMPAIGN

Colorado Voting For Candidates on Five Political Parties.

INITIATIVE IN NEVADA

Warm Compulsory School Measure Debate On in Oregon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—State and federal offices are to be filled by voters in states from the Rocky mountains to the Pacific ocean next Tuesday, and in addition, in most of the states numerous amendments and measures will receive the attention of the electorate. Colorado leads the western states in the number of parties seeking to fill state offices.

Five parties in Colorado have made nominations for at least one office. The parties are Republican, Democrat, and Socialist, which have complete state tickets and the old age pension party and the Farmer-Labor party, which have candidates for the gubernatorial chair. California has four parties with candidates to be voted upon—Republican, Democratic, Socialist and Prohibition, the last named have a candidate for secretary of state.

THREE IDAHO PARTIES.
Montana and Wyoming, in addition to candidates on the Republican and Democratic tickets, will also vote for Socialist candidates on certain state offices in Montana and on a full state ticket in Wyoming. Idaho voters also will receive a ballot with three parties, the Republican, Democratic and Progressive. Oregon has independent candidates seeking certain state offices and other states in the west have but two parties from which to choose.

The governors of Arizona and Oregon are the only two seeking reelection in the states which will elect governors. Other governors declined to stand again for office or were defeated in the primaries.

One United States senator is seeking reelection in Arizona, California, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. In Montana Senator H. L. Myers is not on the ballot, and Oregon, Idaho and Colorado do not elect senators this year. Three men are seeking to become the successor of Senator Myers in Montana.

AMENDMENTS LISTED.
Many important amendments, initiative and referendum measures are to be voted on Tuesday. Colorado will vote on a state income tax and an amendment providing for a $5,000,000 bond issue for road building. California voters have asked to validate a bond issue of $10,000,000 to enable former service men to obtain farms and homes, and also cast ballots on adopting the Volstead act and providing for the enforcement of prohibition by the state. Washington schools will be allowed in the state, which has proved to be hard to collect and unpopular with the citizens.

INITIATIVE IN NEVADA.
Nevada citizens have placed on the ballot an initiative measure authorizing district judges in their discretion to grant either final or interlocutory decrees in divorce cases. Utah has tax amendment on its ballot. Montana voters will vote on the initiative measure authorizing the state to enable former service men to obtain farms and homes, and also cast ballots on adopting the Volstead act and providing for the enforcement of prohibition by the state.

Arizona has put to the front a measure to increase the bond limit of the state for the improvement of the state highway.

BURBANK APPEARS SOMEWHAT IMPROVED
SANTA ROSA, Cal., Nov. 4.—(By International News Service.)—Dr. R. M. Bonar issued a reassuring bulletin today on the condition of Luther Burbank, noted plant "wizard," who has been ill the past week.

The bulletin said there was a general improvement of his condition, his appetite was improved and his weakness had partially left him. The physicians said barring complications they expected rapid recovery.
